Why a Masonic Museum?

Museums have the task of creating encounters between people and important cultural events and trends. In this sense, they create understanding for the past and present and open up a complete new perspective for the future.

Freemasonry has long been part of the culture of Europe, America and other parts of the world - but the public scarcely knows anything about it. The little they think they know is often based on unrestrained speculations and implausible assertions.

It is therefore, imperative, that Freemasons make themselves known to the general public and explain exactly who they are, to what do they aspire and what means they use to achieve this.

This is exactly what the Freemason Museum Switzerland is trying to achieve. It is the one place where the public can meet Freemasonry and Freemasons.

With impressive exhibits and comprehensive background information, the museum introduces visitors to the world of our Order. It offers an insight into its international and national origins, the evolutionary history, the human image, our moral concepts, our ideals and our activities.

The museum is focused on both individuals and institutions who wish to acquire authentic information, talk directly to Freemasons and discover our ancient and unacquainted world.
